Parcels of fruit were harvested from individually selected blocks in a single vineyard from Karridale (southern Margaret River) – chosen for its cooler micro-climate presenting purity and linear acid profile.

A mixture of clean and turbid juice was racked into a selection of new and aged French oak from several cooperages for barrel fermentation over 10 mths.

Brilliant in colour, this wine displays white peach and citrus on the bouquet and a touch of toasty oak. On the palate, these nuances intensify and manifest themselves. While the wine has spent eleven months in French oak barriques, the oak is beautifully crafted and integrated, with no other techniques used to pollute the purity of the variety.

This wine shows best with brasserie roast chicken or international cheeses, and will cellar for four to five years.
